

Psychotherapy and Counselling Online

Professional development Workshop | Course leader Julia Naish

The aim of this course is to provide therapists and counsellors who are already doing face-to-face work with clients with the additional resources to work online, using skype or telephone.

We will cover:

- technology: setting the service up, dealing with technological problems, the benefits and disadvantages of using this technology in psychotherapy and counselling
- clinical and ethical issues and strategies specific to online work
- transference and the therapeutic alliance in online work
- professional memberships and accreditations for online work
- marketing and website verification

Participants must attend both sessions and will be provided with a resource and booklist.

As part of the course participants will work together clinically online between the two sessions.

Dates to be announced.
